TAIONAE, Marquesas Islands, June 23d.—On the litch of May a tidal wave passed those Islands, causing more or less damage throughout the group. At Taiohae, at 3a, m., the tide was observed to rise in a most remarkable manner, until it reached the main road, and in the course of a few minutes it rapidly receded far beyond the ordinary low water mark. It continued to rise and fall at intervals of perhaps helf an hour throughout the day.

We at Taiohae encaped without much damage, though at other places in the group they were less fortunate. At eight o'clock on the evening of the 10th of May intelligence reached us that Captain John Hart's cotton plantation at Ansho was inandated. A large cotton barn was swept out to sea when the waves receded, and the store and dwelling houses were carried a distant, still greater damage was caused. The fine cotton plantation also owned by Captain Hart—was devastated. Five new buildings with all they cortained, were carried out to sea, and when daylight broke, three boats and two scows were among the missing articles. Mr. Kelsall, the manager of the plantation, was carried by the force of the wave a distance of more than a mite, and succeeded at last in reaching the shore after passing two and a half hours in the sea clinging to a piece of plank. Many were the narrow escapes upon the plantation. One house containing four persons was carried entire by the first wave a distance of 200 yards inland. The sea receded with great force, leaving dry land upon the spot where vessels usually anchor. Fortunately no lives were lost, Some ten are second of the great force, leaving and so half hours in the sea clinging to a piece of plank. Many were the narrow escapes upon the plantation. One house containing four persons was carried entire by the first wave a distance of 200 yards inland. The sea receded with great force, leaving also by the first wave a distance of 520 yards inland. The sea receded with great force, leaving also show the extent of $12,000 to $13,000.

"Garet" or Came-Mescrinos.—The progress of love in the church is much facilitated by calling "Miss" sister and "Mr." brother. The young man seeking grace has just got up from wrestling in the straw, and foels relief and joy when a pinmp young woman comforts thin across the table by eaying: "Brother Tompkins, will you have some of the cheese?" He blushes and gets out the sweet utterance, "Ves. Sister Todd." It seems to be so well received, that after a pause, to catch his breath, he says, "Sister, I believe I shall bathe after dinner, Do you bathe?" "Brother Tompkins," she says, "I think it's just old splendid. After a refreshing sermon it seems to be just as necessary as congregational bymn, to get right in and kick up!" "Sister," he says demurely, "We'll both bathe!" Then the young man reflects how agreeable is this religion. You are called "Brother" right after you get it. Then everybody has confidence in you. You go bathing with the very elset. And the younger elset are more comely than the wordly. How beautifully sister Todd pronounces "cheese!" The old heads of the Church, too, encourage the fun and courtship as soon as worship is over. Every tendril of that great vine, the Church Bociety, is thrown around the convert. Sir Giles Overreach could not have been more anxious for his daughter to "kiss close" than these bishops and elders to marry their converts together. It strengthens our church, and is, besides, a marriage fee. So Sister Todd and Brother Tompkins dip together, swim together, dive together, and red aglow together. Confidence is begotten of their mutual faith in the great over-arching protective Society into which they are initiated. Not an eye is taken from them; everlasting vigiliance keeps hem in; the angels bear them up, test at any time they dash, their feet against a stone. In a year or two Tompkins has a cottage at Asbury Farl; a young Tompkins appears to be buptized.
